Industry calls for new EU rules to boost intermodal freight

Six European organisations urge Brussels to restart work on the Combined Transport Directive, arguing that the current framework is no longer fit for modern logistics

APRIL 22, 2026 AT 09:27 AM

Combined transport remains one of the key tools for reducing reliance on road haulage in European logistics, but the regulatory framework designed to support it is, according to a group of industry associations, no longer fit for purpose.
